Salary of english teacher abroad

Dreaming of teaching English abroad but worried you might not be able to earn a good salary? Don't be! There are heaps of countries that pay their TEFL teachers amazing wages. In fact, lots of our graduates have found that they earn more money teaching English abroad than they could in a job back home. Teaching English is one of the most rewarding careers, if not just for the amazing salary but for the opportunity to travel, grow your career and the satisfaction you get from sharing your knowledge with your students. While some countries can offer salaries of $6,000+ per month, it's a good idea to keep in mind the local cost of living and any benefit packages your teaching contract might include, such as flights and accommodation, as this could be expensive in your chosen TEFL country. Generally speaking, the highest paid TEFL jobs can be found in these countries: 1. UAE Average salaries: US$3,500 - 5,000 per month It comes as no shock to anyone that the highest paid TEFL jobs in the world can be found in the UAE, particularly in Dubai and Abu Dhabi as the country's biggest cities. Salaries in the UAE can range from US$3,500 to US$5,000+ per month with many teaching contracts also including flights and accommodation - sign us up! Generally, you'll need a degree and a TEFL qualification to land a teaching job in the UAE. Check out our UAE job guide for more information. 2. Japan Average salaries: US$2,200 - 5,000 per month Not only does Japan offer super high TEFL salaries, it's also one of the most beautiful places in the world where you can teach with an amazing culture. If you're dreaming of teaching in Japan, you can expect to enjoy the beautiful scenery, cherry blossoms, a vast array of festivals and mouth-watering food. On top of that, you'll can also get paid anywhere from US$2,200 to $5,000 per month often with the additional benefits of flights and accommodation - winner! Check out our Japan job guide for more information. 3. Saudi Arabia Average salaries: US$3,000 - 4,000 per month Dreaming of camels, deserts, and a super warm climate? Saudi Arabia might be the destination for you! If you want to teach here, you can expect a competitive salary of around US$3,500 per month plus lots of benefits such as flights, accommodation, visas, and medical insurance. Although experience isn't essential to land a job in Saudi Arabia, you will need a TEFL qualification and a degree. Check out our Saudi Arabia job guide for more information. 4. Hong Kong Average salaries: US$3,000 - 6,500 per month Hong Kong boasts some of the highest paying TEFL jobs in the world, but with that comes a super high cost of living. In fact, Hong Kong has been named the most expensive city in the world! So, although it seems like you're getting paid a lot, if you have a contract that doesn't include accommodation, you could find that a significant portion of your salary will be going to rent and other bills. Don't let that put you off though! Hong Kong is an amazing place to work and lots of teaching positions will include free accommodation and other benefits such as bonuses and paid holidays. 5. Kuwait Average salaries: US$2,600 - 4,000 per month Kuwait might not be one of the first places you think of when it comes to teaching English, but due to a high number of international schools, TEFL job opportunities are plentiful here. Kuwait City may be surrounded by desert, but the city itself is full of life. It's super modern, with towering skyscrapers, clubs, shopping malls and a vibrant expat community - sounds like a winner! If Kuwait sounds like the one for you, you'll need to make sure you have a TEFL qualification and some teaching experience to land a job. 6. Oman Average salaries: US$2,000 - 3,500 per month Oman, famous for its dazzling souks and superb sea food, is one of the most developed countries in the Middle East. Teacher salaries in Oman can range from US$2,000 to $3,500 per month, and with a very low cost of living (around $700 per month) you'll have plenty of opportunities to expand your savings or use your money to get your travel on and see some of the sights! 7. South Korea Average salaries: US$2,000 - 3,000 per month A land of K-pop culture, bustling cities, crazy nightlife and year-round festivals, South Korea is becoming more and more popular with TEFL teachers every year. And, with the promise of free accommodation and a high, tax-free TEFL salary, we're really not surprised! Along with free accommodation, many teaching positions in South Korea also include additional benefits such as bonuses, flight reimbursement, medical insurance, and paid holidays. Check out our South Korea job guide for more information. 8. Taiwan Average salaries: US$2,000 - 3,000 per month Much like South Korea, salaries in Taiwan range from US$2,000 to $3,000 per month, but with an even lower cost of living, warmer winters, and scorching summers - yes please! If Taiwan is taking your fancy, you'll easily be able to save lots of money each month. In fact, many teachers find it possible to save at least US$1,000 per month - wow! TEFL job positions here generally require teachers to hold a degree due to visa purposes. 9. China Average salaries: US$1,500 - 3,000 per month Although salaries in China aren't always as high as others on this list, China has by far the most TEFL jobs in the world, so it's easy to find work here! Plus, the cost of living is relatively low in comparison to the wages and lots of contracts include free accommodation and flights, plus other, more fun benefits such as paid social events, Chinese lessons, and paid trips. Check out our China job guide for more information. 10. Vietnam Average salaries: US$1,000 - 2,000 per month Although Vietnam doesn't boast very high TEFL salaries, the cost of living here is super low compared to everywhere else on this list. So, although you might feel like you're not getting paid much, you also won't be spending much making it more than possible to save whilst working here. Plus, many TEFL jobs will include accommodation and bonuses - yes please! Vietnam is a great place to start your TEFL journey as you generally don't need any teaching experience to land a well-paid job here. Check out our Vietnam job guide for more information. Already TEFL qualified? Head over to our sister company LoveTEFL to find heaps of English teaching jobs all over the world! Remember - the requirements for teaching in different countries are always changing, but with a little bit of luck and research you'll be able to land a high-paying job in your dream location! Happy TEFLing! It's true that English teachers abroad likely didn't make that career choice solely for the money. The benefits and personal growth gained by being an ESL teacher far outweigh the salary for most, however, finding a financially sustainable and rewarding experience is also important when searching for English teaching jobs abroad. Although teaching English overseas will never get you on a list of world billionaires, it can come with a reasonable salary - one that even puts money in your savings account. As a teacher abroad, it's perfectly reasonable and attainable to earn a decent wage - in top-paying countries, this can be from $2,000 to over $6,000 per month! - depending on the country, region, experience, and qualifications. Read more: How to Get a Work Visa for Teaching English Abroad It's also important to keep in mind that high salaries are not the only variable for a financially rewarding job teaching abroad. You should always consider the local cost of living and benefits packages to determine how much you'll be able to save during your time teaching ESL. Many jobs will offer benefits beyond what you may expect, including room, board, and travel expenses. Although some countries and regions still pay very little (like teaching gigs in Thailand or Central America), other countries, particularly teaching jobs in the Middle East and Asia, are compensating English teachers with surprisingly strong wages. The highest-paid ESL teaching jobs can often be found in these parts of the world. Editor's Note: These ESL salary estimates are subject to change. Average Salary: $3,500-$5,500 USD/month (based on experience & credentials) Cost of Living: $1,200-$1,900 per month Rent: $700-$1200 (typically included) Food: $100-$300 (depends on how much you cook or eat out) Transportation: $60 per month Generally speaking, the highest-paid ESL teaching salaries globally are found in Abu Dhabi and Dubai, the two biggest cities in the UAE. Salary packages for teachers in the United Arab Emirates can range between $3,500-$5,500 (12,300-22,000 AED) per month, depending on experience. However, like most Middle Eastern countries, the requirements are stringent, and most jobs require teachers to be certified to teach in their home countries or at least have several years of teaching experience. Additionally, while highly experienced teachers can make a salary around or even potentially above USD 6,000 per month, the average teacher is making much closer to AED 16,000 (USD 4,350). Along with a high salary, ESL teachers can expect to receive an extensive benefits package in the U.A.E., including a housing allowance, relocation allowance, flights home, and government health care. Plus, your salary will most likely be tax-free! When all of this is combined, saving money on a teacher's salary here is very achievable. Two of the most popular destinations in the UAE are Dubai and Abu Dhabi. These world-class cities are the definition of cosmopolitanism. If you live here, you'll have your choice of top restaurants, beaches, nightlife, and cultural activities. Additionally, the cost of living is in the U.A.E. is less than in the United States. Additional Resources: SABIS International Schools Average Salary: $2,200-$5,000 USD/month (based on job type, experience & credentials) Cost of Living: $1,000 per month Rent: $500-$700 (rent is usually included) Food: $100 (depends on how much you cook or eat out) Transportation (bus): $80 The cuisine, snow-capped mountains, springtime cherry blossoms, steaming bowls of noodles, and welcoming people have given teaching in Japan a broad appeal. And it doesn't hurt either that salaries in Japan have a wide range of $2,200-$5,000 (¥220,000-¥540,000) per month, depending on your certifications and experience as a teacher. Some jobs even offer additional bonuses like housing assistance and free flights to the right candidate. Previous teaching experience is not necessary, though it can be tough to find a position without it since the job market in Japan is extremely competitive. Most less experienced teachers opt to participate in the JET Programme, but be sure to consider the alternatives. ESL teachers participating in the JET program average a monthly wage of USD 2550 (280,000 JPY). Japan has a high cost of living relative to the United States, which should be considered when evaluating potential destinations to teach English abroad. An individual living in Japan should expect to pay at least USD 1,500 a month, making programs that provide housing subsidies extremely desirable. Additional Resources: Average Salary: $2,400-$4,500 USD/month (based on job type, experience & credentials) Cost of Living: $1,000 per month Rent: $700-$1,500 (housing is usually included) Food: $150-$250 (depends on how much you cook or eat out) Transportation (bus): $40 If a dry, desert climate sounds like a fair trade-off for a high ESL teaching salary, Qatar might be a destination for you to consider. This tax-free teaching destination is considered very safe for Western professionals - even thousands of miles away from home, you won't feel so alone with Qatar's lively expat community to join. Experience is always beneficial, and TEFL certificates are usually necessary. Salaries in Qatar are typically in the range of $2,400-$4,500 (9,000 to 16,300 QAR) per month. ESL teachers in Qatar can also expect extensive benefits packages, often including housing, flights, and the potential for a transportation allowance. Qatar has a lower cost of living relative to the United States, so an ESL teaching salary can go a long way. The generous salary range offers significant room for savings. Additional Resources: Typical requirements: Bachelor's degree and TEFL certificate; international schools generally require a valid teaching license. Average Salary: $2,600-$4,000 USD/month (based on job type, experience & credentials) Cost of Living: $1,500 per month Rent: $600-$1,000 Food: $140-$190 (depending on how much you cook/go out) Transportation (bus): $40 Due to the high number of international schools, job opportunities are plentiful for English teachers. Kuwait City may be surrounded by desert, but the city itself is buzzing. It's clean and modern, with skyscrapers, green parks, clubs, shopping, and a vibrant expat community. ESL teacher salaries in Kuwait range from $2,600-$4,000 (785-1,200 KWD) per month, tax-free. Most employers require teacher certification and experience, especially for higher salaries in this range. Kuwait also has a reasonable cost of living, so the quality of life English teachers can experience is high. Combining the low cost of living, a modern city, and a robust salary range makes Kuwait an excellent destination for prospective ESL teachers. Additional Resources: Average Salary: $2,000-$3,500 USD/month (based on experience & credentials) Cost of Living: $800 per month Rent: $250-$600 Food: $150-$200 (depending on how much you cook/go out) Transportation (bus): $40 Oman is one of the most developed countries in the Arab world, and it has seen rapid advancements in its education system in recent years. Although opportunities to teach English in the country are somewhat limited, it is an excellent opportunity to help develop the ESL field in Oman. Those who do choose to teach in Oman will be able to do so for a competitive salary. Teacher salaries in Oman can range from $2,000-$3,500 (750-1,350 OMR) per month, and with a very low cost of living you'll live comfortably and have plenty of opportunities to expand your savings. Additional Resources: Recommended reading: Our guide to teaching jobs in Oman. Average Salary: $1,700-$2,650 USD/month (based on job type, experience & credentials) Cost of Living: $900-$1000 per month Rent: $400-$600 (housing is typically included) Food: $150-$200 Transportation (bus): $30-$50 Japan's neighbor to the west, South Korea, has a similar salary and benefits package to Japan but is somewhat less popular as a tourist destination. However, that is changing. English teachers are flocking to Korea, where the salary for ESL teachers is $1,700-$2,650 (2.0-3.2 million KRW) per month and often includes housing and complete or partial flight reimbursement. Considering the additional overtime and bonus opportunities, and a lower cost of living, South Korea is one of the best destinations for teaching abroad. A minimum of a TEFL certificate and bachelor's degree is generally required to teach English in Korea, especially for the EPIK, GEPIK, or SMOE programs. Additional Resources: Average Salary: $2,000-$3,000 USD/month (based on hourly wage, experience & credentials) Cost of Living: $1,000 per month Rent: $200-$500 Food: $100(depends on how much you cook or eat out) Transportation: $30 - $50 Similar to ESL Salaries in Korea, the salaries in Taiwan range from $2,000-$3,000 (60,000-90,000 TWD) per month, with an even lower cost of living, milder winters, and near tropical summers. Saving money can be very easy, and ESL teaching jobs are available across the board, from kindergarten to university, public schools, and private. Many ESL teachers in Taiwan find it possible to save at least $1,000 a month! Taiwan does not have a legal requirement that ESL teachers obtain a TEFL certification, however, most schools will require one. Additionally, Applicants will need a bachelor's degree (or, in a few cases, an associate's degree) and will have to pass a background check to get a teaching job in Taiwan. Additional Resources: Global Kids English School Average Salary: $1,400-$2,200 USD/month (based on experience & credentials) Cost of Living: $1,000 per month Rent: $200-$700 (housing is typically included) Food: $100 Transportation (bus): $30 - $50 Although salaries in China aren't quite as high as others on this list, at $1,400-$2,200 (10,000-15,000 RMB) per month, China is by far one of the biggest employers of ESL teachers in the world. Pair this wide availability of jobs with a low cost of living, and the comparatively 'low' salary is balanced out, especially with potential benefits packages. If you decide to teach in China, you can either work through a private company or find a position at a public school. English skills are a requirement for many students hoping to pursue higher education in China, so your contributions will make a difference in the lives of your students. China does require ESL teachers to obtain a TEFL certification and a bachelor's degree. Many of the employment packages available in China include a TEFL certification course, adding to the benefits of choosing China as your destination to teach English abroad. Additional Resources: Average Salary: $1,200-$2,100 USD/month (based on experience & credentials) Cost of Living: $700 per month Rent: $200-$400 Food: $100-$200 (depending on how much you cook/go out) Transportation (bus): $10 While salaries here aren't as high for ESL teachers as other countries on the list, Vietnam has a much lower cost of living than most. Ranging from $1,200-$2,100 per month (27,000,000-48,000,000 VND), you can stand to save a good bit if you don't splurge on extravagant housing. Vietnam isn't the most popular option in Asia for ESL teachers, but it's an incredibly beautiful and friendly country with a lot to offer. Ho Chi Minh City and Saigon have many modern amenities and thriving international communities. Regional travel is affordable so making low-cost Vietnam your home base is a great choice for teachers interested in exploring Asia. Additional Resources: We've covered international locations for this article -- almost exclusively in the Middle East and Asia -- however, that doesn't mean you can't make a comfortable salary elsewhere. ESL teachers in the United States earn on average $40,000 - $75,000 per year. As with most professions, a Master's degree will help you significantly raise your salary, as will experience and certifications. Urban centers and towns or cities with a high immigrant or international student population tend to have more teaching opportunities and better wages - though they might also have a higher overall cost of living. Furthermore, teachers at international schools worldwide also make a very comfortable salary. This ranges from country to country and region, and those positions tend to require more experience and qualifications. Teaching at an international school abroad is a desirable option for those who want to make a career out of teaching abroad. Lastly, teaching English online is a great way to gain teaching experience, connect with an international community, and save money, all while maintaining maximum flexibility. Salaries can vary widely, but you can expect to earn between $14-$22 per hour, which will certainly add up over time, especially relative to the expenses of traveling, living, and working internationally. Teaching English online is a fantastic option for those looking to determine if teaching English is a rewarding career path for them, newer teachers looking to gain experience in the industry or ESL teachers who have obligations that prevent working abroad. Read more: Teaching English Online Salary Expectations - How much can I make? For each country on this list, there is, expectedly, a fairly large range of salaries. Unexperienced teachers, especially those without any TEFL or teaching certification, should expect a salary on the lower end. Those with several years of experience, a relevant degree, and a TEFL certification will be able to make more - regardless of destination. A TEFL certificate is highly recommended for anyone interested in teaching English abroad. It will prepare you for the classroom and help you provide students with a highly valuable experience. Additionally, many TEFL programs will help you find a job in the country you get certified. You may also want to consider gaining skills in teaching test preparation. This could lead to salary increases, more job opportunities, or the possibility of added income from outside tutoring. Teaching English abroad is a great way to pay off student loans, travel, save money, add to your skillset, and immerse yourself in a new culture. With contracts that range from 6 months to 2 years, it's possible to cater your experience to suit your needs. Remember that the requirements for teaching in different countries are constantly changing. With a little bit of luck and research, you can earn both a good wage and an unforgettable life experience. While your salary as an ESL teacher is a significant component in making the right decision on where to teach abroad, there are many more. Continue your research and learn about the 10 best places to teach abroad in 2022 here.
